

Parent Governor Profile - Hattie Chu

My background is in visual arts project management and I have fifteen years' experience of organising art exhibitions. I am currently working as a curator at Tate Britain. My role involves undertaking research, listening to artists and colleagues, supporting them, working in collaboration with external individuals and organisations and trying to coax the best out of people. I deal with legal processes as they affect art installation and manage large pots of publicly-funded money and the associated evaluations and reporting that such responsibilities entail. I manage risk at work but try to encourage adventurousness.

I am of course interested in opportunities for children to engage in the arts and am very aware of the importance of children experiencing and participating in a broad range of artistic activities from a young age – not just for the pleasure that this brings but also for the skills and confidence that it helps to instil.

I joined the governing body in September 2017 and am a link governor for SEN and a member of the School Community Committee. I have one child currently at All Saints – Olivia in Year 1. More than anything, as a parent, I am passionate about my desire to achieve the best possible, well-rounded schooling experience for our children.
